General Sandino Comes Back Again

Had Been in Exile Since February, Comes Back to Lead Rebels

MEXICO CITY, June 19.—(AP)—General Augusto Sandino's representative here issued a statement Wednesday saying the insurgent leader had returned to Nicaragua and had defeated the United States marines in two encounters. The representative, Pedro Jose Zepeda, declared Sandino's men had captured a marine sergeant and an aviator and in addition had taken 10,000 rounds of ammunition and many guns.

Reports have been current all of this year that General Sandino was on his way back to Nicaragua.

The insurgent chieftain waved the marines much trouble in Nicaragua in 1928 and the early part of 1929, but eventually lost against him and he sought asylum in Mexico.

Last July, he took up residence in the state of Yucatan, in the southern part of Mexico, and there lived more or less quietly until rumors started in January that he intended to return to Nicaragua. In February, he left Mexico with his staff and until now his whereabouts had been a matter for speculation.

After Sandino had left Nicaragua, the trouble of the marines and the Nicaraguan national guard were not ended. They continued to clash with small groups of bandits and have had numerous engagements in the last few months.

New York Police Hunt For Killer

Assassin Writes Paper Intends to Kill Thirteen Others

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—Several hundred policemen are searching the byways of the Boston-Post road, searching for the third victim of a maniac within the week.

In a letter received by a New York newspaper, the writer boasted that he would commit another murder. The victim was named as "Harold Bridenbach," and saying that the body would be found on the Boston-Post road.

While six hundred policemen search the byways along this road the paper is said to have gotten another letter saying that the murder had been committed.

NEW YORK, June 19.—Police were convinced Wednesday that Wednesday that a maniac who considers it his moral obligation to commit 16 murders, is roaming the metropolitan area and already has killed two men.

He has threatened in a letter to a newspaper to strike again Wednesday night at College Point unless he receives some "important papers" which seem to exist only in his disordered mind.

Noel Sowley, a 26-year-old radio salesman who was shot to death as he sat in an automobile with a girl, is the latest victim of the man who refers to himself as "3-X," the man behind the gun. Sowley's body was discovered Tuesday in a sparsely settled section of Queens. On the lap of the dead man was a newspaper clipping describing the killing of Joseph Moynski, whose body was found a week ago in a parked automobile at Whitestone, Queens. The murder of Sowley had punctuated this grim toast on the margin of the clipping:

"Here's how."

All the elements that go to make up detective fiction were present in the murders that were so singularly similar. Besides the "missing papers" and the coded letters to the New York Journal, two beautiful girls are involved.

They are Miss Catherine May and Miss Elizabeth Ring. The former was in Moynski's car when he was killed and the latter was Sowley's companion. Detectives surmised that the maniac considered himself as an avenging force whose duty it was to kill the escorts of young women whenever he found a couple in a parked automobile.

The account that Miss Ring told police was similar in almost every respect to that related by Miss May. Neither could furnish an adequate description of the killer.

Tuesday the Journal received this letter, the third of the series:

"You have not published the code message—to bad—for your information there is more work for the police now. At 11 p. m. Wednesday Sowley was bumped off near Floral Park and not very far away from the police station. You will find him near an auto junk pile. We have selected this night to do it as Moynski was buried Tuesday. This is our second warning. Thirteen more men and a woman will go the same way if they do not return two of the missing papers. The New York document was found on Sowley Tuesday night and also some of our money as in the case of Miss C. May. I advise you to publish the code messages for Wednesday one more will go. You may let them know that 3-X is the man behind the gun. He asks for no quarter, but will give none. On June 18 at 9 p. m. I will be at College Point to get another."

Commander Byrd Returns to U. S. Soil Again Today

Twenty Months Exploration Tour Closes With His Arrival

FIND COAL DEPOSITS

125,000 Miles of Land Discovered and Explored

NEW YORK, June 19.—(AP)—Conqueror of both ends of the earth, Richard E. Byrd, set foot on United States soil again today at 11:40 after a twenty months exploration tour.

As he left the ship "Malcom" he was surrounded by throngs, from sea, in the air and by cheering thousands on land. The city of New York was boisterous in their greeting toward him.

The first person to greet him was his mother, whom he held in a long embrace, before turning to other relatives and friends.

"It's good to get back again," he said in his first greeting. "It's good to have this reception." Then turning to newspaper reporters he spoke to them on the seriousness that took him away.

The Byrd party had discovered and explored 25,000 square miles of land, he said. In many places rock formation was found which contained great coal deposits.

The thing I am most thankful for, he said, is that I brought all the crew safely back home.

Sweet Potato Bug Discovered Here

John L. Barbaree Finds California Pest in Nevada County

A sweet potato bug—apparently a first cousin to the well known Irish potato pest—has been discovered by a Nevada county grower, who today brought The Star several specimens in a fruit jar.

They will be turned over to the Fruit and Truck Experiment Farm for examination and identification.

The grower is John L. Barbaree, of Stamps Route One, Nevada county. Mr. Barbaree said he found the bugs in a purchase of Porto Rican slips from an Arkansas plant farm dated April 12. Of the 1,000 slips which he bought on that date only one small group showed signs of bugs, which were immediately segregated.

Mr. Barbaree said that the only previous record of the sweet potato bug is in California. Sweet potatoes in this locality suffer very little from pests, a variety of flea puncturing the leaves of some plants, but causing little damage as a rule.

The bug which Mr. Barbaree has discovered is radically different from the Irish potato bug. The latter is well known for its hard shell, smooth surface, and considerable size. The sweet potato bug, however, is smaller, has a soft body, and wears many projecting horns or feelers. It is striped like a yellow-jacket bee.

Star Receives Cotton Blooms

Reports Loaded Crop in Field From Which Bloom Was Taken

Two cotton blooms were received in the mails Thursday morning by the Hope Star. One from the farm of Berlin Jones, near Putnam and the other from L. L. Hovatter, on the J. H. Reynolds farm which is located on Emmett route 3.

Mr. Jones reports that the field from which his bloom was taken averages over knee high and is loaded.

Although the blooms are considered early they have been beaten by ten days. In the issue of Thursday, June 12, the Star carried a story of the first bloom. It was grown on the Reed Brothers plantation on Red River by D. G. Richards and was picked on June 12.

With nothing but a street and a few city locks separating it from Texas, the courthouse in Miller county has become the goal of hundreds of conubial-minded East Texans, young and old, since the "gin law" went into effect. Couples come here from as far away as 200 miles in East Texas to have the knot tied without delay.

Justices of the Peace J. S. Draper, 78, and G. M. Orr, 76, remain at their posts in the courthouse from early morning until the clerk's office is closed, all the while doing a thriving business.

Justices Giving "Curb Service"

Texarkana Justices Doing Big Business Since New Law

TEXARKANA, Ark., June 19.—(AP)—Dan Cupid might have suffered from the snipping of his bow string in Texas, if he hadn't been such a good long-distance archer.

After a year in which the "three-day marriage intention law" enacted by the 41st Texas legislature at the request of Texas county and district clerks, a view of Miller county (Ark.) marriage records confirms the shattering accuracy of the ubiquitous little archer from even so far away as Arkansas.

Texarkana, which is situated in Bowie county in Texas and Miller county in Arkansas, has proved a mecca for the impatient lovelorn, not willing to comply with the complications of the Texas law.

Since the Texas law became effective, 930 Texas couples have crossed the state line, swelling the pocket-books of Arkansas officials and of those performing the ceremonies.

Of 1628 licenses issued in Miller county during the past year, approximately 56 per cent of them have been for Texas couples. In Texarkana, Bowie county, Texas, across the line, a grand total of 89 licenses were issued during the same period.

Licenses issued in Bowie county during the 12-month period to June 13, 1929, when the law became effective, totaled 597 for a monthly average of 49.75 marriages, while 610 licenses were issued during a corresponding period in Miller county, at the rate of 50.83 per month.

With nothing but a street and a few city locks separating it from Texas, the courthouse in Miller county has become the goal of hundreds of conubial-minded East Texans, young and old, since the "gin law" went into effect. Couples come here from as far away as 200 miles in East Texas to have the knot tied without delay.

No Headlines for Crime

DOWN in El Dorado the Daily News has launched a new policy to take murder stories off the front page and list them under the single small heading of "Murders," on an inside page.

Many readers have written the Daily News their approval of this new policy; and yet, in glancing down the inside page on which those murder stories appear, simply told, and unadorned by any headline, we find ourselves reading intently every word.

Crime is one of the fundamentals of dramatic action. The other is morality. The churches and newspapers are pretty much together on this issue, except that the one discusses cause and effect as exemplified in biblical action, while the newspapers tell the story of today.

Richard Lloyd Jones, the great newspaper proprietor of Tulsa, used to defend the printing of crime stories by saying that when Macbeth killed King Duncan the world had to know about it before the armies of Macduff could be aroused to vengeance.

Vengeance against criminals is the duty that the state discharges in the name of all its citizens. In the accomplishment of that vengeance, and the fulfillment of the whole moral law, the newspapers are one of the most powerful influences of modern civilization.

For they record the story of the crime as told to them by the police, and by the defendant or his attorney. They follow it through the trial, to conviction or acquittal.

In every criminal proceeding two factors are really on trial. One is the defendant. The other is the peace officer and judicial organization of the community, of whom the citizens expect and exact justice.

We do not mean to write in a vein of cheap cynicism, but it is our conviction that if the printing of crime news ever ceased to be both the prerogative and duty of the newspapers, black injustice and stark corruption would walk the length and breadth of this land. The founders of this nation so said.

However it should be noted that what the Daily News is doing affects the arrangements, rather than the publication, of crime news. The stories are still published. But they are without headlines, and on an inside page. "If this treatment of crime news appeals to our readers," the News says, "it will be continued, and this newspaper will be free of the salacious or morbid coloring with which nearly every murder is clothed."

This is a worth-while effort for a more cheerful newspaper. But the intrinsic interest of crime news can never be effect, and shouldn't be. Its true power is forcibly brought to light by the common mistake which non-newspaper folks commit when they suppose that any great proportion of newspaper reading matter actually deals with crime. The national percentage figures on columns of news matter give crime never more than 7 per cent, and frequently as low as 3 per cent.

So small a percentage of the whole newspaper is fatally interesting to all its readers. The error on the public's part is helped out of course by the manner in which crime is displayed in the headlines—and this new policy of the El Dorado paper will be an interesting experiment for the newspaper men who are watching it over the state.

A Magnificent Memorial

THE Eagle-Democrat, Warren newspaper of which Duval L. Purkins, formerly of Hope, is publisher, issued on June 12 a fifty-page edition which is one of the finest we have seen from any newspaper shop in Arkansas.

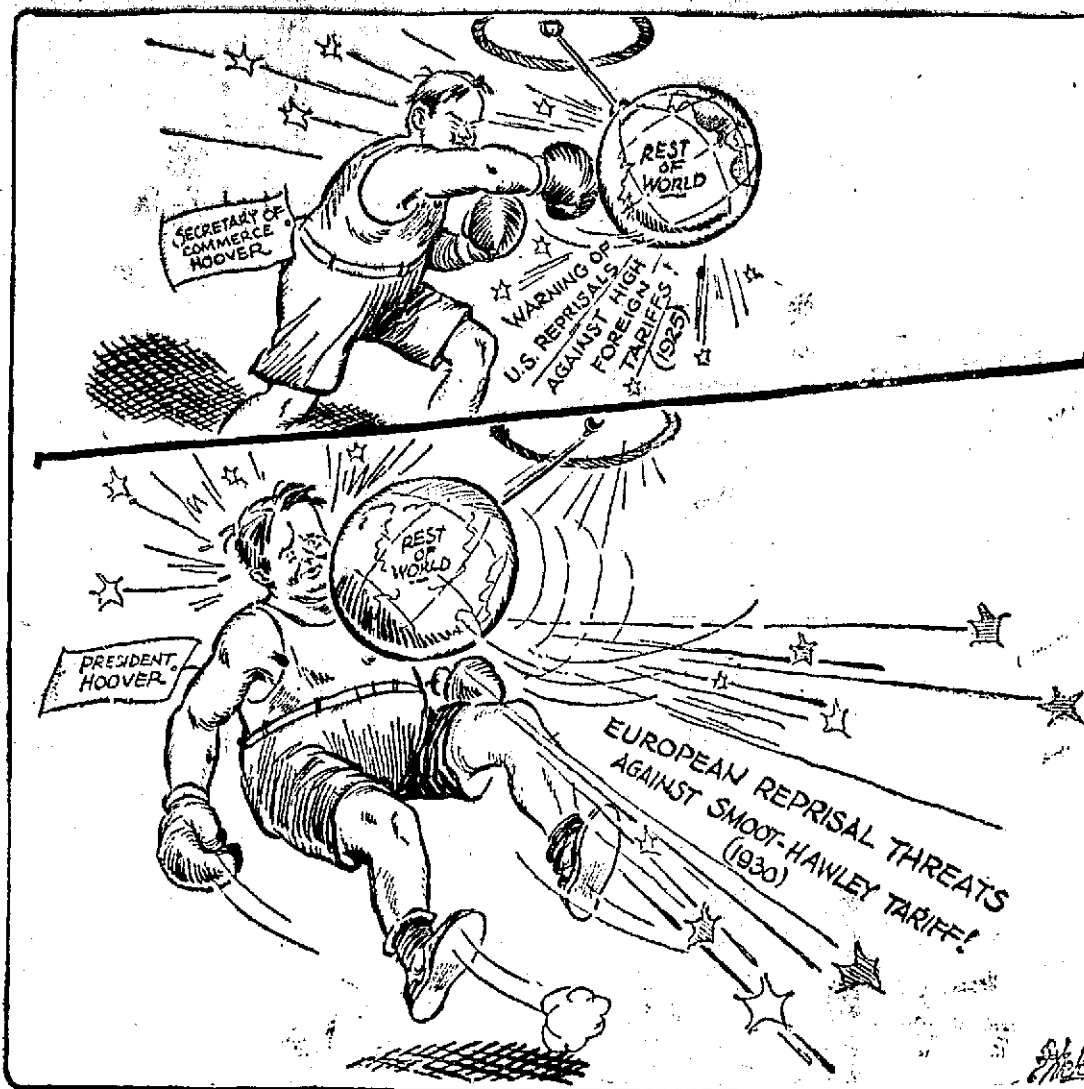

The copy received by The Star is a memorial to the dedication of the state's new bridge across the Saline river on highway No. 15 between Warren and Pine Bluff. The edition also celebrates the 100th anniversary of Bradley county.

It is filled with historical data on one of the oldest and largest lumbering communities in Arkansas, and will take a permanent place in the written record of the state. Many photographs show the progress of new state roads and bridges in Bradley county, giving that formerly isolated community an outlet to adjoining counties and sections of the state in virtually every direction.

The Star congratulates Mr. Purkins and his staff, and is particularly proud of the fact that the publisher is a Hope man, having returned here no later than last month when he delivered the commencement address at Hope High School.

If Texas should reluctantly exercise its right of dividing itself into five states, it would cause a mighty disturbance by sending to Washington eight new low-tariff Senators and by securing eight more electoral votes for a democratic candidate for President. But, being vastly proud of their commonwealth's empire-like dimensions, the Texans probably will remain too reluctant to give serious consideration to any such proposal, however advantageous to their section of the country.

WASHINGTON—It makes a good story to say that Miss Grace Abbott is being considered for secretary of labor to succeed James John Davis, but everyone who knows anything around here realizes that President Hoover is about as likely to appoint the lady as he is to send a diamond-studded loving cup to the Senate at the close of the present session of Congress.

One good and sufficient reason why the numerous endorsements of Miss Abbott for the job will be ignored is that it would be a rather bold thing to appoint a woman to the cabinet. Not rash, of course, but just a trifle bold. Mr. Hoover's reputation for cautious, conservative statesmanship is well known.

She's No Stuffed Shirt.

More importantly than that, Miss Abbott, as chief of the U. S. Children's Bureau for many years, has not shown that she possesses some of the prime qualifications for a secretary of labor.

In the first place, a secretary of labor must be something of a stuffed shirt, with a gift for making long-winded speeches about nothing in particular. He—or she—must have a genius for inaction, a positive flare for never doing anything to offend anyone. On the one hand, he must avoid any word or action that might tend to alienate a segment of the so-called labor vote; and on the other he must be ever so careful not to give labor enough of a break to arouse criticism from employing corporations which can be depended upon for political contributions.

A secretary of labor ought to be able to dig up a union card out of his old papers, but he must have piled up enough money and property to realize that money is the best of all possible worlds and that changes are always dangerous. When business depression comes along he must be able to rise up and blame them on the Senate, the bolsheviks, the Democrats or somebody and when several million persons are unemployed he must be able to proclaim that a few hundred thousand are actually taking a voluntary vacation and that everything will be all right in a week or two.

Now the sad fact is that not even Miss Abbott's warmest friends can argue that she could live up to such standards. They are forced to admit that she is earnest, capable and active. Instead of ignoring or covering up labor problems it would be just like Miss Abbott to try to do something about them.

She has a union card—federal employees' union—but she has it because she believes in labor unions and not because she needed a card to get and hold a job. Her services with the Children's Bureau dates back to 1916 and she was beginning to administer the Child Labor act when it was strangled. President Harding appointed her chief of the bureau when Julia Lathrop left and everyone who is interested in the bureau says she has done an admirable job there.

MOM'N POP

"The Texan" Comes to Saenger Friday-Sat.

What one of the best beloved of American authors put into words, Paramount, with Gary Cooper in the leading role, has put into a lifelike, talking picture, "The Texan," which plays at the Saenger Theatre Friday and Saturday. Is taken from O.
Henry's immortal story, "A Double-Dyed Deceiver," and is the second of the spectacular, outdoor, talking epics which Paramount initiated with "The Virginian."

"The Texan" comes in at a gallop and gallops his way straight into the heart of the audience. He's gay, debonair, swaggering, the same Cooper who won hearts in "Wolf Song,"
"Seven Days Leave," "Legion of the Condemned," and more recently and particularly, "The Virginian." Here he makes love to beautiful Fay Wray, who is devastating as a South American senorita.

Spectacular and beautiful scenes form a background for the ever throbb-ing action of "The Texan." The windswept plains of Texas change to the rolling pampas of South America, where, in an effort to rob a wealthy widow, the bandit Cooper goes as the impoverished son. Instead of robbing the widow, however, he stays to love and woo her niece. And his thrilling fight to make good his regeneration makes the rousing climax.

The excellent work of John Cromwell, who made William Powell's "Street of Chance," is evident in the clever handling of this subject. Twists of honest humor turn the tense dramatic situations. There is fun, as well as thrills, in "The Texan."

Artificial pearls which bring as much as $200 each are being manufactured from the scales of herring.

Splinter-proof glass for spectacles is now being made that will resist the impact of the discharge from a shotgun without breaking.

Pres. Launches Cattle
When Tariff Bill Signed

NOGALES, Ariz., June 19.—(UP)—Although he probably did not suspect it, President Hoover started a cattle drive when he signed the tariff bill. Sonora, Mexico, cattlemen had waited the president's pen flourish as a signal and Tuesday night they were bringing their herds across the border.

The drive began as soon as the measure was passed, to escape the higher importation duties imposed by it.

ERRATA

"Moredege" razor blades, quoted in the J. C. Penney store advertisement Wednesday, should have read five for 25c in place of three. The original quotation was a typographical error.

That young Michigan pugilist who is studying for the ministry is probably looking forward to some lively bouts with Satan.

usual goodbyes and good lucks while strong men hide their true feelings. The Fokker skims over the ice, then gracefully like a monster bird silhouettes itself against the cloud-strewn Antares sky. It is a thrilling moment, a sight never seen on earth before.

From the take-off, until Byrd opens the trap door of the cockpit and drops a stone brought from the immortal Floyd Bennett's grave over the South Pole itself, Floyd Gibbons' voice will be heard, describing in detail and in his dramatic style, Byrd's conquest of the Pole. It being the first time that a plane has ever flown over the bottom of the world.

"With Byrd at the South Pole" is a straight-forward story telling. There is comparatively little posing by the men. There was too much to do. The whole effect is real, sincere, never for one small minute artificial or falsely dramatic. "With Byrd at the South Pole" is one of the true epics of the camera.

"With Byrd at the South Pole" will be presented at the Saenger theatre July 2 and 3.

Relates How New and Different Medicine Banished Ills of Her Daughter

MISS DOROTHY RHYME
"My ten year old daughter, Dorothy, has been troubled with chronic constipation ever since a small child," said Dorothy's mother, Mrs. J. D. Rhyme, 616 East Eleventh street, Amarillo. "This condition caused her to become nervous and she frequently suffered with bilious attacks and dizzy spells. Often she had severe head aches and I had to keep her home from school for two or three days at a time. She was very flighty, had no pep or vitality, and tired very easily. After Konjola so thoroughly relieved me of my ailments I decided to give it to Dorothy. It is amazing how quickly this medicine went to work. Now she is like a different child. She has only taken Konjola two weeks, and I am going to have her continue the treatment until she is again in perfect health. I highly recommend Konjola to mothers of ill children."

No wonder Konjola is a beautiful household word in tens of thousands of American homes. Here is a medicine for old and young; for all the family. A complete treatment of from six to eight bottles is recommended. Konjola is sold in Hope at Briant's drug store, and by all the best druggists in all towns throughout this entire section.

Film Story of Byrd at South Pole
To Be Shown at Saenger July 2-3Paramount Cameras Record Greatest Epic of Modern Times

TWO YEARS ago the greatest adventure of modern times—perhaps one of the truly great adventures of all times—was undertaken by a dauntless group of men. Previously unknown by hardships and countless hardships, these men chose to attempt the mystery of what today is called the bottom of the world. They hoped to penetrate the vast, overpowering barrier of ice mountains to that intriguing point which every school boy knows by name, the South Pole! They were led by a hardy, intrepid, and brave man, Richard E. Byrd.

Admiral Richard Byrd planned the trip to the South Pole. Paramount offered the services of two of its best cameramen to go along and make a permanent record on motion picture film of Byrd's grand adventure. Never before had this been done. The exploits of Amundsen, Shackleton, with the great achievements of the moving picture camera.

The cameramen were alive to every situation. There is that thrilling moment when the ice pack cracks and one of the men is swept into a yawning crevasse, to be saved by the quick action of several of his comrades and by the superb courage of one of the men who risks his life in the successful attempt to get to the hurt man. There is the tragedy of Spy, a giant Huskie dog, who becomes lame yet persists in following the dog team until unable to go further. Heartbroken, one of the men is forced to kill this loyal animal rather than have him freeze to death. Then, as funny as Charlie Chaplin himself, hundreds of inquisitive Penguins stand by at Byrd's camp, hobnobbing about like courteous head waiters, completely unafraid. And last it be forgotten there is Igloo, a fox terrier and Byrd's companion in many explorations, who very successfully is the life of the party.

Toward the end of the two year's stay at this camp, called Little America, Byrd and his men uncover the giant Fokker plane which is to make the trip over the South Pole. Men and dogs pull it from its ice hunger. It is oiled, tuned up. Byrd, Balchen, a radio operator and a cameraman get into the plane. There is a moment of Nobile and Byrd himself, in previous exploration trips to the North and South Poles, had been recorded merely by the written word. People throughout the world had read of these deeds, yet it was almost impossible for them really to understand the drama, the tragedy and the humor of such exploits.

But today, through the efforts of Paramount's cameramen, the story (and it is one of the most fascinating stories ever recorded on film) can now be enjoyed by young and old throughout the world.

Paramount has titled this picture, "With Byrd at the South Pole." As shown to a select audience at a New York preview where the famous radio favorite and war correspondent, Floyd Gibbons, was the guest of honor, this mighty adventure reaches the heights of superb drama; a vital, vigorous, thoroughly human story of men who faced eternally for the sake of science, and ideal, a thrill. "With Byrd at the South Pole" is a picture so effectively handled as one continuous, logical and dramatic story that it takes its place
